The Role

The Council for British Archaeology (CBA) have five core strands of activity, one of which is to engage young people aged 25 and under. One of our ongoing primary strategic aims over the next three years is to continue to develop a 16+ offer that uses the Young Archaeologists' Club as its foundation.

The CBA received funding from Historic England to consult and develop a Youth Advisory Board to enable us to embed youth voice within the organisation. Further funding is in place to work with the Youth Advisory Board to develop a YAC Young Leaders' Pathway at 16+ and expand our offer for the Young Associate Network. The aim is to provide young people with opportunities to shape the CBA and to participate in archaeology and heritage that is relevant and meaningful to them. By embedding young people within the organisation, it will also enable the CBA to widen its appeal by becoming more representative of UK society through the people and groups that it champions and the resulting projects and processes that we develop. In addition, the learning we generate through this project will also enable us to support the CBA's network of groups, affiliate societies and the wider heritage community to enact similar practices, benefiting the young communities they serve and contributing to the sustainability and relevance of the organisations themselves.

The Youth Governance Officer will undertake the day-to-day activities associated with running the Youth Advisory Board and facilitate the enhancement of the Young Associate Network offer. They will also support the development of the Young Leaders' Pathway alongside the Delivery and Engagement Manager. Their secondary role will be to develop bespoke training that introduces CBA stakeholders to youth voice/governance approaches and supports them to put this into practice within their own groups/organisations. We also anticipate that the Youth Governance Officer will support the broader youth engagement team to seek further funding to develop and enhance the post 16 offer at the CBA.

This role has been funded for three years by The Headley Trust.

4. About the CBA

Our vision

To enable anyone to have the skills and opportunity to tell the stories of the people and places that connect us to our world, that help us understand it and to make it a better, more inclusive place.

Our mission

To inspire people to explore places and engage with their environment through archaeology, we will help them make new connections with each other and the places in which they live, work, learn and grow.

To help people explore and create heritage that matters to them, championing fresh perspectives in how we recognise and value things and places - everywhere.

To grow the public value of archaeology by connecting commercial, academic and community groups to demonstrate the social impact of archaeology.

Our values

Our values define how we work and approach championing archaeology, widening public participation, and making it more relevant and accessible to a wide range of people.

The CBA aspires to be:

Inclusive and participatory

- Archaeology is for all – it is everywhere, anyone can participate, it is open to everyone. Our role is to help people to discover and explore stories, connections and new perspectives using archaeology as a tool.
- Archaeology enables us to bring together diverse communities and create inclusive practice.

Curious and enquiring

- Archaeology is about curiosity and enquiry – it helps shape the questions we ask about ourselves and our environment - the places we live, work, learn from, and visit.
- Archaeology is an activity that helps generate understanding, knowledge, and cultural value. It helps us think about ourselves, our wider world, and the connections in between.

Collaborative

- Archaeology is best done as a cooperative process – as a conversation between people and groups which leads to different, richer, more dynamic, and sustainable outcome.
- There are many ways to participate in archaeology and we seek to work collaboratively with partner organisations of all sizes nationwide to increase the opportunities for everyone to get involved.

Creative, communicative, and connective

- Archaeology is about thinking creatively: recognising, understanding, creating, and enhancing cultural value.
- Archaeology makes an important societal contribution to education, social and economic resilience, health, and well-being and keeping people connected.
- Understanding, assessing, and communicating the impact and value of archaeology and participation helps us develop new methods for improving access and increasing benefits to communities caring for their environment.

Caring and campaigning

- Archaeology is central to our understanding of the natural and historic environment and how we can care for it, campaign for it, protect and enhance it.

Further details of our work are at www.archaeologyuk.org.

The Board and staff are working to transform the CBA into an inclusive and dynamic organisation, championing archaeology and the public's participation in it. As set out above 'Inclusive and participatory' is one of our five core values. It sets out our important aspiration that everyone, regardless of their background, can participate in archaeology.

To this end, the CBA aim to foster a culture that recognises and values different backgrounds, approaches, skills, experience, knowledge, and expertise. By having greater diversity, we believe that we will be a stronger organisation and ultimately will be able to inspire more people to enjoy archaeology. As a national charity, we have an ability to reach a wide and diverse population of audiences, colleagues and partners through our geography and reach. We therefore welcome applications from those who bring difference.

We are seeking a Youth Governance Officer to help shape and deliver our work and help us deliver on these core values.
